

EDITORIAL

A novel initiative

It is an attempt to initiate documentation of quality research data, and in this concern the Volume-1, Issue-1 is in front of you, which has emerged as a seedling of a beautiful fruit bearing tree. The day will come when the fruits of this tree will satisfy the hunger of the knowledge providing informative and novel findings of the research workers. We have attempted to maintain the standard of review process and hopeful for healthier peer review system in coming issues also. We could not meet to compile almost 50% of the manuscripts in this issue due to lack of time which lead to delay in peer review and corrections by the authors. Out of nine manuscripts received, we were able to publish only four research articles in this issue, whereas four articles received for publication were not in the final shape due to major corrections that were recommended by the reviewers. I hope those authors will submit their articles properly after corrections; and hopefully the papers may be included in coming issues. One paper was also found unfit for publication. Quality publication is our main motto; therefore, opinions and comments to improve the editorial policy of the IJASBT will be highly appreciated.

I hope you find this journal informative and useful. It is a new initiative. Your comments and suggestions will help us to improve the quality and content of the journal.

Editor-in-Chief,

International Journal of Applied Sciences and Biotechnology (IJASBT)